A LITTLE SUFFERER
Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.
It affords me pleasure to give you this report of the cure of our grandchild by your CUTICURA REMEDIES. When six months old his left hand began to swell and had every appearance of a large boil. We poulticed it, but all to no purpose. About five months after it became a running sore. Soon other sores formed. He then had two of them on each hand, and as his blood became more and more impure it took less time for them to break out. A sore came on the chin beneath the under lip which was very offensive. His head was one solid scab discharging a great deal. This was his condition at twenty two months old, when I undertook the care of him, his mother having died when he was a little more than a year old, of consumption (scrofula, of course). He could walk a little, but could not get up if he fell down, and could not move when in bed, having no use of his hands. I immediately commenced with the CUTICURA REMEDIES, using the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP freely, and when he had taken one bottle of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT his head was completely cured and he was improved in every way. We were very much encouraged and continued the use of the Remedies for a year and a half. One sore after another healed, a bony matter forming in each one of these five deep ones just before healing, which would finally grow loose and were taken out, then they would heal rapidly. One of these ugly bone formations I preserved. After taking a dozen and a half bottles he was completely cured and is now at the age of six years, a strong and healthy child. The scars on his hands must always remain; his hands are strong, though we once feared he would never be able to use them. All the physicians did for him did him no good. All who saw the child before using the CUTICURA REMEDIES and who see the child now consider it a wonderful cure. If the above facts are of any use to you you are at liberty to use them.

WASHINGTON.

The President Signs the River and Harbor Bill.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS AT 4 P. M

The Senate Confirms a Large Number of Nominations—List of Important Measures Passed at the Session

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—The president has approved the river and harbor bill.

To the associated press reporter the president said to-day that an examination of the river and harbor bill in the light of facts presented to him by Gen. Newton, chief of engineers of the army, [illegible] with the [illegible] of his own, satisfied him that the wants of the interests of the country demanded its approval. Gen. Newton, whose knowledge of the condition of the present works and necessities for the future was based on reports made to him by the engineer corps of the army, assured the president that of the items of the bill, which exceeded in number, [illegible] and a proportion of them were meritorious beyond question, [illegible] and the others he was unable to give positive [illegible] because of a lack of complete information concerning them. The president, [illegible] examination of these items as possible, and although with such reports as were at hand he had been unable to absolutely satisfy himself as to their character, he found that it appeared to be for continuation of work already begun and now in course of construction.

The president said he had gone over the bill as fully as the data at hand and the time permitted him for that purpose allowed, and while some of its provisions, not included in the items above mentioned, were probably objectionable, he was satisfied that most of the improvements provided for were of great importance, and he had found that the loss which would ensue to the government from deterioration of existing works in case of further stoppage would be very serious, and that the amount of money estimated by the chief engineer as at least [illegible] dollars which would be required to protect and preserve the works begun and in progress, upon which many millions have already been expended, would, in case of failure to continue it now, exceed by about $800,000 the amount appropriated in the bill for items which in the judgment of the government's engineers might be unnecessary.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—In the senate last night after a long debate on the surplus resolution the conference report was agreed to without division, and the senate rejecting a motion to go into executive session, adjourned.

This morning Allison moved to take up the final adjournment resolution.

Conger opposed action for the present until the fate of the river and harbor bill should be known.

Ingalls said he thought the senate was being trifled with. He submitted that it was not appropriate, after the business of both houses was considered as closed, and when they were all ready to depart, to be kept here doing nothing in expectation, or hope, or surmise, or conjecture that at some time in the future they would be advised that action might be taken by the executive on a bill sent to him for his approval. It was trifling with the public interests to allow the adjournment resolution to remain unacted on. It was the first time in the executive history that congress had been permitted to adjourn without the executive coming to the capitol and awaiting himself of the usual custom to ascertain the will of congress.

A STATEMENT BY PLUMB

Plumb from the conference committee on the bill for the repeal of the pre-emption and timber culture acts stated that the senate conferees had agreed to yield everything except the provision that where there was an allegation of fraud in an entry of land the issue shall be sent to court for adjudication. The house conferrees had declined that and had also declined to sign the conference report. As the matter now stood, it was claimed to be in the power of the commissioner of the general land office to set aside absolutely entry under any of these acts and practically without investigation except one sided. Agents were now at work seeking out technical objections. This had produced great consternation and great indignation. The senate conferrees felt that cases involving title to valuable property ought to be tried as all other questions are tried that relate to property rights of individuals. He thought it proper to make this statement.

Harris (the chair being occupied by Hawley) offered a resolution of thanks to Senator Sherman for the ability, courtesy and impartiality with which he had presided over the senate during the present session. The question was put, and the chair declared the resolution unanimously adopted, but Riddleberger demanded the presence of a quorum, declaring that a resolution ought not to pass and without a quorum could not pass. In this difficulty (there not being a quorum) the senate at 1:10 took a recess until 2 o'clock.

THE RAILROAD ATTORNEY BILL.

After recess, Hawley, referring to Beck's bill to prevent members of congress from acting as counsel for subsidized railways, said he had been seeking an opportunity to have it called up and acted on, but other business had stood in the way.

Beck agreed with Hawley that it had been impossible to have action on the bill this session. He thought, however, that the bill had not had fair play. He did not believe that a single member of the judiciary committee would vote for the substitute which it had reported. He thought that the committee had sought to make a burlesque of what he regarded as a very serious matter. He moved that the second Monday in December next be fixed for its consideration. The motion was agreed to.

The house bill for relief of certain soldiers of the Twelfth Michigan volunteer infantry dishonorably discharged, was amended and passed.

Edmunds reported that the committee from the two houses appointed to wait on the president to inform him that the two houses had completed the business of the session and were ready to adjourn unless he had some further communication to make, had performed that duty, and were informed by the president that he had no further communication to make and that he congratulated the two houses on the termination of their labors.

Plumb, from the conference committee on the fortification bill, reported that the committee had been unable to agree, which amounted to a failure of the bill. After debate the subject was dropped.

ADJOURNMENT.

After a short delay the moment of adjournment arrived, and the chair said: "Senators, before announcing the termination of the session I beg leave to return to each of you my grateful thanks for your uniform courtesy to me as your presiding officer, and especially for the resolution to-day in which you have expressed your approval. This session has been distinguished by the great number and variety of subjects which have been considered and by a marked absence of political controversy. The varied needs and aims of the rapidly growing country have occupied most of the time of the senate. A short recess will enable you to greet your constituents, and I hope and trust that each of you will return next December with renewed health and strength to your important duties. In pursuance of a resolution of the two houses of congress I now declare this session closed sine die." A hurried leave-taking among the senators and employes took place, and half an hour later the chamber was emptied.

WORK OF THE SESSION

A List of the Important Measures that were Enacted Into Laws

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—The first session of the forty-ninth congress, which ended to-day, began on Monday, December 7, 1885, and covered a period of seven months and twenty-eight days, or [illegible] days exclusive of Sundays. Of this time the house was in session [illegible] days and the senate [illegible] days. During that time there were introduced [illegible] bills, or measures of which [illegible] were house bills and 234 house joint resolutions, and [illegible] bills and eighty-three joint resolutions of the senate. Measures prepared for action at the session exceeded in number by [illegible] those introduced at the first session of the forty-eighth congress, which sat for seven months and four days, or [illegible] days of actual sitting time. They covered a variety of subjects from the patient laborer at the capitol for extra services to the convict question, from legislation and legislation with respect to national finance. Of the entire number comparatively few were of what may be termed of national importance. The greater number were measures of a private and personal or merely local importance, relating to [illegible], pension bills, bills for erection of public buildings, for bridging rivers, for granting right of way to railroads through military or Indian reservations, for removal of political disabilities, for changing judicial districts, for establishing new land offices, for changing names of vessels, for increasing capital stock of national banks, for printing public documents, etc., etc.

A very small percentage of the whole number of bills introduced, of either a general or private nature, became laws. A comparatively small number succeeded in getting through the committees to which they were referred and reaching the calendars of their respective houses. Some secured passage by the house in which they originated, but failed of action in the other branch, and a very large number still remain unconsidered by the committees to which they were referred.

MEASURES THAT PASSED

The total number of bills that passed both houses was 1101, of which [illegible] bills and [illegible] originated in the house. Of this total 906 became laws with the president's approval, [illegible] became laws by limitation, the president failing either to approve or disapprove them within ten days after their presentation to him, [illegible] were vetoed, and one failed by reason of adjournment without action by the president.

Of the new laws [illegible] were house measures and [illegible] senate measures. Laws that became such by limitation were, with two exceptions, private pension and relief bills. The exceptions were the bill to authorize the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Gulf railway to construct a railroad through Indian nations, and that to retire Lieutenant Randall.

Of measures vetoed by the president thirty-six were senate bills and seventy-seven bills of the house. Twenty-eight of the senate bills vetoed were private pension bills, three were for the erection of public buildings at Dayton, Sioux City, Iowa, and Zanesville, Ohio; one was to grant to railroads the right of way through the Indian reservation in Northern Montana; one to make Springfield, Mass., a port of delivery; one to provide that the bodies of paupers and criminals and strangers dying within the District of Columbia unclaimed within a specified time after death shall be turned over to medical colleges; one to quiet titles to settlers on the Des Moines river lands, and one to provide for the construction of a bridge across Lake Champlain. Of the house bills disapproved by the president seventy-four were private pension bills and three were for erection of public buildings. The proposed public buildings were for Asheville, N. C., Duluth, Minn., and Springfield, Mo. The number of measures vetoed during the session were four more than have been vetoed from the foundation of the government to the beginning of the session just closed. While nearly all of the vetoed bills of the senate were reported back from committee with recommendation that they pass notwithstanding the president's objections, and while similar action was taken on some of the house bills, only one, that granting a pension to Jacob Romizer, was passed by the two houses over the veto. The Des Moines river bill passed the senate over the veto, but failed to receive the requisite two-thirds vote in the house. Motions to pass bills to grant pensions to Mary Anderson and Andrew J. Wilson over the president's veto were defeated in the house. Consideration of the other veto measures has been postponed until next session.

Measures of importance that have been enacted into laws during the session, in addition to the regular appropriation bills, are as follows:

Presidential succession bill.

To provide for the study of the nature and effect of alcoholic drinks and narcotics.

To remove the charge of desertion against soldiers who reenlisted without having received a discharge from the regiments in which they had previously served.

It also makes provision for selling such lands on refusal or neglect of the companies to pay the costs of survey.

Bill for increase of the navy.

To forfeit lands granted to the Atlantic & Pacific Railway company and restore the same to settlement.

To increase to $12 a month the pensions of widows and dependent relatives of deceased soldiers and sailors.

Declaring forfeited certain land grants made to the states of Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana.

To amend section 3244 of the revised statutes so as to require brewers commencing business to give bond in a sum equal to three times the amount of tax which they will be liable to pay during any one month, and to execute a new bond whenever required.

Directing the secretary of the treasury to deliver to the proper claimants or owners silverware, jewelry, etc., captured by the United States army during the late war, and to sell at public auction all such articles not claimed within one year.

To direct a commissioner of labor to make an investigation as to convict labor.

To establish life-saving stations on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and on the great lakes.

Providing that manufactured tobacco snuff and cigars may be removed for export without payment of a tax, and repealing the law providing for inspection of tobacco.

To extend the immediate delivery system.

To increase pensions of soldiers who have lost an arm or a leg.

OTHER MEASURES.

In the agricultural appropriation bill, directing the commissioner of agriculture to purchase and destroy diseased animals whenever in his judgment it is essential to prevent the spread of pleuro-pneumonia from one state into another.

In the sundry civil appropriation bill, directing the secretary of the treasury to issue silver certificates in denominations of one, two and five dollars; also appropriating $40,000 for the establishment of an industrial home in Utah for women who renounce polygamy and for their children.

GENERAL NEWS.

Trial of Cutting by the Mexican Court.

HE IS PRONOUNCED GUILTY.

A Brother of Anarchist Spies Testifies at Chicago—He Admits that he Lied to the Police

DENVER, Col., Aug 5.—An El Paso special says: The trial of Cutting was set for 10 this morning. At that hour the Mexican authorities of the court, the judge, Licentiate Senor Miguel Zubia, his clerk, the official interpreter, [illegible], with plaintiff Emigdio Medina, [illegible] and clerk, the prisoner, a few Americans and Mexican citizens, and representatives of the El Paso press assembled in the small court room, furnished with two tables and a few chairs. At 10 o'clock the prosecuting attorney, J. M. Sierra, and Jesus Ysla, attorney for the defense, announced that they were ready for trial. On opening the court Judge Zubia asked the interpreter to read all the proceedings and documents in the case. Among them were Medina's affidavits charging Cutting with [illegible] the [illegible] of the Mexican constitution in regard to the publication in El Centinel, and with immediately after [illegible] published in the Sunday Herald of El Paso, a repetition of the offense. Then a second affidavit from Medina, charging that Cutting had [illegible] the Sunday paper in Paso del Norte, and alleging that his malicious intention was made plain because Cutting's defamatory card appeared in both Spanish and English, while the Herald usually published nothing but English. Then followed the order of the judge to recover all copies of the Herald containing said article in circulation.

THE MINUTES READ

Then the written minutes of the court from day to day were read from the time when Cutting first appeared before the court till the day and hour of the sitting. Then came the original articles of Medina, a Mexican citizen, in El Centinel, the Sunday Herald, a paper published at El Paso.

Medina had filed as evidence against the prisoner the act of conciliation previously signed by both, the copies of the Herald and an interview had with the prisoner by another local paper.

One part of the court minutes said that Cutting at 10 o'clock on the night when he was told that he might give bond answered that he would not give bail, that his case was in the hands of his government, that if the demand for his release was not obeyed at once United States troops from Fort Davis would arrive and liberate him by force.

The minutes stated how several persons had been appointed by the court to defend Cutting against his will, and how all these declined until Jesus Ysla accepted the task. Then followed the introduction of the laws of the state of Texas applicable in the case, as the offense was conceded to have been committed in Texas.

IGNORED BY CUTTING.

When the reading was finished Cutting was asked if all was satisfactory to him. He replied that he could not countenance the proceedings, as he considered the court without jurisdiction in the case. The other officials then signed the approval of the contents of the minutes, and argument was declared in order.

Jose Maria Sierra, prosecuting attorney, took the floor and delivered his argument, stopping only to quote from the law such articles and paragraphs as were referred to in his speech. He said that the case hinged upon a written agreement between Medina and Cutting, called an act of reconciliation, which was broken and made void by the publication made by Cutting in El Paso; that this breach of contract gave Medina a perfect right to continue his case against the prisoner under the quoted section, article 657, Mexican code, in support of this view. He said Cutting was not an ignorant man, but had repeatedly acted in direct opposition to the act of conciliation, as the publication of interviews with the prisoner in El Paso papers proved, and the prisoner merited no clemency, because his crime was worse than if he were ignorant, than if he had recognized its gravity and sought to make amendments, instead of constantly reiterating his attacks against Medina in interviews. The prisoner had made the investigation of the case difficult by refusing to answer the judge, and this was an aggravating circumstance in the case. The result of this crime has been to terrorize the people of the vicinity, disturbing society, causing fear of revolution and probably war. All these were aggravating circumstances and crimes in themselves. Sections 1 and 4, article 86, Mexican law, gave the court jurisdiction, and he characterized the offense as a crime because it was only punishable in Texas, as the quoted law specified, by imprisonment from six months to two years, or a fine of $100 to $1,000.

He concluded by calling attention to article [illegible] penal code defining the sentence in such a serious case, and asked the court for a term of two years in prisonment at hard labor against the prisoner.

He then asked the court to censure Consul Brigham for his officious interference in the case, and requested that the federal authorities be notified of the consul's act, so that the necessary diplomatic correspondence be commenced to effect his removal.

TESTIMONY OF COMPLAINING WITNESS.

Emigdio Medina, the accusing party, was then called and testified that Cutting had defamed his character in El Centinel on June [illegible]. For this he had Cutting cited by the court for a reconciliation. As the result of this Cutting promised to publish four times in both English and Spanish a retraction. He had broken his word, as is evident from No. [illegible] of El Centinel, by having omitted the Spanish version and forgiving the English in bad faith, omitting capital letters and using small type for capital letters, and not satisfied with burlesquing my good faith and his oath, he caused to appear two articles more offensive than the first in the Sunday Herald of El Paso, June 20, one of English and the other in Spanish, reiterating his former charge and claiming that he had retracted only because he was forced before the Mexican judge. Cutting, not satisfied with the harm done my reputation and my business, said in an interview with a Tribune reporter that I am a fraud and a dead beat, that this had always been his opinion of me and of my newspaper enterprise, and these opinions he published.

Witness further stated that "it being public and notorious that Cutting has defamed me, making it impossible for me to continue my newspaper enterprise, and my interests have suffered great damages, so that I will be unable to continue business, therefore I supplicate the judge to name two persons to fix the damages caused me by said Cutting, as the most equitable way of settlement on my part."

At the conclusion of the testimony of the witness Senor Jesus Ysla, attorney for Cutting, took the floor. He argued that the former action ended the claim of Medina. He said that Cutting did not voluntarily break any Mexican law and that was why he went so far away to republish his card; that if the offense was punishable there were many circumstances to make it as light as possible.

Mr. Cutting was then offered the floor, but only stated that he could not recognize the court, as he was in the hands of his government.

The judge then pronounced him guilty and court adjourned. The judge has fifteen days to pronounce sentence in.

THE ANARCHISTS.

Henry Spies Takes the Stand and Admits that he Lied

CHICAGO, Aug 5.—At the trial of the anarchists the two witnesses examined this afternoon whose testimony was the most bearing on the case were Henry Spies, brother of defendant of that name, and William Snyder. The latter said he was [illegible] years old and a socialist.

"Where have you been the past two months or so?" asked Capt. Black.

"In the county jail."

"Under indictment for conspiracy in connection with the Haymarket riot?"

"Yes sir." Witness then related how he acted as chairman of the meeting held at the Arbeiter Zeitung office early in the evening of May 4. The meeting, he said, was for the purpose of aiding Mrs. Parsons's movement to assist sewing girls.

The defense desired to show by this testimony that the meeting at the Arbeiter Zeitung had no connection to subsequent events of Haymarket.

Witness then testified that he went to the Haymarket meeting and got into the wagon occupied by the speakers. He was there when the police came up and the bomb exploded. The only important points in his testimony were his statement that Spies did not leave the speakers' wagon during the evening and that Fielden did not fire at the police.

In his cross examination of the witness Grinnell asked if the American group of which he had testified he was a member ever met for the purpose of going through military evolutions and learning the use of arms.

Witness replied that his group had met several times for the purpose of drilling, so as to be able to present a good appearance while going to the polls. The group had no arms in their possession and had never met for the purpose of learning to use them.

Before leaving the court room witness shook hands warmly with each defendant. His demeanor and language led to the belief that he fully considered himself to be a martyr to a righteous cause.

TESTIMONY OF HENRY SPIES

"Henry Spies, you may take the stand," said Capt. Black. Henry Spies is a brother to Spies. He seemed ill, and the announcement that he was to take the stand caused quite a flutter in the court room. There was nothing sensational in his testimony, however, except the statement made under oath that the story he told the officers who were after him, and told the state's attorney afterwards, was a fabrication from beginning to end.

Being questioned by Capt. Black, witness said he attended the Haymarket meeting with his brother August; that August and himself found that Parsons had not arrived, and went as far as Union street in search of him; that they returned [illegible] to the wagon, and Spies opened the meeting.

"Did you see Schwab at the meeting?" asked Capt. Black.

Witness answered in effect that though he was at the meeting from beginning to end, and all of the time in sight of his brother, he did not once see Schwab. This contradicts the statements of Thompson, witness for the state, who said Spies and Schwab previous to the speaking walked together from the wagon to Union street and back.

Witness then related how he stood beside the wagon during the speaking, how when the bomb exploded he helped his brother alight from the wagon, and how he struck down a revolver aimed at his brother, receiving a bullet in his arm. He then separated from his brother and went home to have the wound dressed.

"Did your brother say anything when the bomb exploded?" asked Capt. Black.

"Yes sir, he said he thought it was a gatling gun."

"Did Spies leave the wagon at any time during the meeting and go toward the alley?"

"No, he remained in the wagon."

This contradicts the testimony of Gilmer, who says he saw Spies light the fuse of the bomb in the alley.

"Did you not tell the police that you went there [illegible] [illegible] and that you were not at the Haymarket meeting at all, but were at [illegible] in Zepf's hall and [illegible] to the door way?"

"Yes, that is what I said."

"Why did you tell them that now?"

"I told them that. Now I am under oath and it is the truth." He explained that to youth, his brother being already under arrest and he [illegible], he thought it best to tell the officers [illegible] to be [illegible].

Aug. Krueger, who said he was sergeant in corresponding secretary for the Lehr und Wehr Verein, was also served to have held his first statement to the officer. His testimony was not admitted.

John J. Waller, a confessed anarchist, testified that the police fired two or three shots before the bomb exploded. Court adjourned.

CHINESE SEAMEN

Instructions from the Treasury Department to the Collector at San Francisco

WASHINGTON, Aug 5.—The acting secretary of the treasury has received a letter from the collector of customs at San Francisco in regard to the landing there of Chinese who claim to be entitled to such privilege because they are seamen belonging to crews of vessels arriving in that port. It appears that such Chinese are allowed to land without any guarantee for their departure from the United States on the theory that such practice is authorized by the ruling of the department in the case of Wing Hong. He was a seaman on a vessel which arrived at New York and was permitted to land in accordance with a decision of the United States circuit court of New York to the effect that a Chinese seaman temporarily arriving in the United States on his vessel might land for the purpose of obtaining employment on another vessel leaving the United States, provided he gave security to reship within thirty days.

Secretary Fairchild, in a letter to the collector at San Francisco on the subject, says that the practice at that port seems to have been outside such decision, inasmuch as it appears that not only Chinese seamen but Chinese stowaways have been permitted to land there under the guise of seamen, without any formality or giving any security for their appearance. Mr. Fairchild adds that in his opinion only such seamen are entitled to land in the United States under said decision as are employed in the ordinary pursuit of their calling to leave their ships for the purpose of obtaining employment in other vessels, in which to return or to leave the United States, but that no such Chinese seamen should be allowed to land until he makes proper application to either the surveyor or collector for that purpose, and after furnishing proper security, either by his recognizance or otherwise, to receive permission to do so. He also says that steamship companies should not be permitted to land their Chinese crews without first making application and then having security for obtaining permission.

GUILTY OF A HORRIBLE CRIME

The Colorado Man Eater Sentenced to Forty Years' Imprisonment

DENVER, Aug 5.—The second trial of Alfred Packer, better known as the man eater, was concluded at Gunnison City last night. The jury, after being out three hours, returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter on five counts, as charged in the indictment, and to-day Judge Harrison sentenced the prisoner to forty years in the penitentiary, or eight for each man it is supposed he murdered.

The crime Packer was charged with is one of the most horrible on record, and it is probable that more excitement was created over his acts of cannibalism at the time of his discovery than over any other crime committed in America during the last half century. During the early part of the winter of 1874 Packer, in company with five prospectors, Israel Swane, Wilson Bell, George Noon, Frank Miller and James Humphreys, started from Bingham, Utah, to a new mining district in the San Juan country. The winter was severe and game scarce, and when the party reached the place where Lake City now stands they were out of provisions and suffering with cold. Here they went into camp, and one night Packer murdered his companions and for fifteen days lived off the flesh of the dead men. In the early part of 1874 Packer made his way to Los Pinos agency, where he stated that Bell had gone crazy with hunger and murdered the other four men while Packer was out hunting for game, and on his return to camp Bell attacked him with a hatchet and he was compelled to kill Bell in self-defense. Packer was arrested, had a preliminary hearing, and was confined in the Saguache jail, from which he escaped the same year and was a fugitive until 1883. When recaptured at Fort Fetterman, Wy., he was going under the name of John Swartz. His attempt at the trial to show that he killed only Bell failed. He stoutly maintains his innocence as to the other four, and seems reconciled to his fate, although he claims it is unjust.

EASTERN NEWS ITEMS

A SETTLEMENT WITH VILLARD

NEW YORK, Aug 5.—The Times has the following: The management of the Oregon & Transcontinental allowed nineteen months to elapse between the presentation of their last showing of assets and that which has been given out. He was urged again and again by W. H. Starbuck and Horace White to sign the papers, but the final compromise was not reached for some months after he had [illegible] to close the account. There was a very well grounded rumor just before the recent election that he had alienated the support of Mr. Starbuck on account of his delay in the matter, but Mr. Starbuck's influence was not thrown against him at the polls. What the exact amount of the claim was does not appear from the balance sheet shown, but the secretary's transfer shows that it must have been a large one.

PACIFIC COAST.

New La Grande, Oregon, Swept by a Heavy Fire.

LOSS, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND.

Proceedings of the G. A. R. Encampment—A Grand Banquet in the Evening—Big Fire at Stockton—Coast Notes

LA GRANDE, Aug 5.—The Gazette extra contains the following account of a conflagration that swept the business town of New La Grande this morning. At 12:40 Thursday morning fire was discovered in the rear of Jay Frogg's general merchandise store on the south side of Adams avenue, in the main business part of the town. As to means of protection of any kind against fire it was seen from the first that there was no hope of saving any of the buildings and everybody endeavored to save all the goods possible. All of the buildings being of wood and close together there was no possibility of checking the flames, and every building on the block was entirely consumed. Fire then leaped across the street, starting on James Clay's saloon, and every building on the block was burned. From Frogg's corner the fire reached Stevens & Walker's mammoth warehouse, and also the Cooper block, extending up as far as the brewery, where it was stopped. Fortunately it did not cross the slough that runs through that block, and by almost superhuman efforts Sommer, Blum & Co.'s store was saved. It was almost a miracle that Bloch Bros.' store was saved, also that of H. R. Kemp. Had Bloch's store caught, the whole eastern portion of town would have burned, and the loss would have been much greater than it was.

The fire undoubtedly was the work of an incendiary, for when first discovered it was only a small blaze on the outside of Mr. Frogg's store, and as the yard had just been thoroughly cleaned there was no chance for sparks or anything else to catch, even if there had been any carelessness.

Proceedings of the Encampment—A Grand Banquet in the Evening

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 5.—At to-day's session of the national encampment of the G. A. R. it was decided that the action of the encampment at Portland, Me., last year to pay only the expenses of the executive committee of the national council of administration when called to consult with the commander in chief be sustained. The committee on rules and regulations made the following recommendations, which were adopted: Against electing the executive committee of the council of administration for two years; that the meeting of the national encampment be held between April and November instead of May and September as at present. This was in deference to the wishes of Southern members. That when Memorial day occurs on Sunday, Saturday be observed, unless Monday is a legal holiday. A resolution that post quartermasters be elected instead of appointive came up. The recommendation of the committee against the resolution was sustained. A proposition to adopt Upton's tactics was rejected. A recommendation of the department of Maryland to give preference in public positions to honorably discharged soldiers, whether disabled or not, was adopted. Adjourned.

GRAND BANQUET

The department of California G. A. R. this evening tendered a banquet to the commander in chief and members of the twentieth national encampment of the G. A. R. at Odd Fellows' hall. About 500 persons were present, among whom were Commander in Chief Burdette, Gov. Stoneman, Mayor Bartlett, Gen. Sherman, Gen. Logan, Gov. Alger of Michigan, Gen. S. W. Backus and Gen. John F. Sheehan. Col. Smedberg, department commander of California, presided, with Commander in Chief Burdette on his right and Gen. Sherman on his left.

Before the toasts began comrade Holmes, on behalf of the department of California, presented Commander in chief Burdette with a handsomely jewelled badge, a souvenir of the twentieth encampment. The badge is of gold, about five inches long by two and a half wide, of the usual shape of the G. A. R. emblem. On the enameled centre are guardian and stars. Below this is a band with thirteen diamonds on it, representative of the thirteen original states. On the reverse is the inscription: "Presented to Commander in chief S. S. Burdette by the National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, San Francisco, 1886." Commander Burdette returned thanks and then responded to the toast "Grand Army of the Republic."

The crush was tremendous, and although fully 10,000 managed to get in there were still many unable to obtain entrance. These concerts have proved a great success and created the greatest enthusiasm.

HE LIVED TOO LONG

Samuel J Tilden belonged to that class of American statesmen who lived too long for their own highest fame. Had Burr died before he shot Hamilton he would have left an honorable historical record, as a gallant soldier of the revolution, an able lawyer and a polished man of affairs. Had Jefferson died before he wrote the resolutions of 1798 his fame would be without a spot upon its glorious sun; had Webster died before he made his famous speech of March [illegible], 1850, his eloquence would have included no word that we would wish to blot from the record. Had Seward died when Lincoln did he would not have been tarred with the same dirty brush which Andy Johnson used to smear his own best fame. Had Sumner died at the close of the war he would have escaped the error and weakness of his [illegible] views concerning the settlement of the Alabama claims, and had Tilden died in 1848 at the age of 34 he would stand in history as the champion of the Union and of freedom against the pro-slavery nullifiers, as the author of the protest of the free soil democracy of 1848 against the action of the democratic national convention of that year in making the nationalization of slavery a test of party fealty. This national democratic convention met at Baltimore in May, 1848, and refused to admit the regular delegation from New York, except on the condition that they would individually and collectively disown and recant their acceptance of the resolution passed by the state convention which nominated them, announcing the opposition of the democracy of New York "to the extension of slavery, by any act of the federal government, into any territory already free."

In 1844 Martin Van Buren had been dismissed from public life and proscribed for discountenancing the scheme to make five slave states out of Texas, and yet Van Buren was able in 1848 to organize the free-soil revolt, which resulted in the defeat of the regular democratic ticket, Cass and Butler, the election of the last whig administration, that of Taylor and Fillmore. In the debates of the democratic national convention of 1848 Senator Daniel S Dickinson of New York urged the exclusion of the regular delegation, because of the resolution of the state nominating convention against the extension of slavery, and denounced Tilden and his associates for their refusing to "let the sturdy freemen of the South go with their associations into the Northwest territories." It is a noteworthy fact that when the civil war broke out in 1861 this Daniel S Dickinson was an ardent and eloquent champion of Lincoln's war policy from first to last, while Tilden was his most cruel and astute critic.

Tilden wrote the report of the New York delegates rejected by the national democratic convention of May, 1848, and presented it to the democratic state convention held June 12, 1848. This report denounces the irregular delegation of Senator Dickinson as persons "who, living in a state that owes its greatness to the dignity and influence with which its liberal institutions have clothed the arm of free labor, unblushingly advocate the extension of slavery into territory now free."

Among the associates of Mr Tilden who signed this protest of the revolting delegates of the free soil democracy to the democratic national convention of 1848 were Preston King, John A Kennedy, Ward Hunt, [illegible] James W Nye, James S Wadsworth, James R Doolittle, Henry R Selden and Wm F Havemeyer, all subsequently ardent champions of Lincoln's administration. King, Nye and Doolittle became republican members of the United States senate, Hunt, as a republican, was appointed to the supreme bench, and Selden, as a republican, became a member of the New York court of appeals.

On the 12th of April, 1848, previous to the national convention, was issued the address of the democratic members of the New York legislature, known as the "first gun for free soil." It was the joint work of Martin Van Buren, John Van Buren and Samuel J Tilden, and though not all from the pen of Tilden, all its views were his by adoption. This address was the corner-stone of the "free soil" party, as distinguished from the party of unconditional abolition, and Martin Van Buren and Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts, were the candidates of this party in the presidential election of 1848.

This address, in a passage written by Tilden's own hand, affirms the constitutional power of congress to prohibit slavery in the territories; it affirms the constitutional power of the people of a territory, while in a territorial condition, to prohibit slavery, and denies the right of any man to go into any such territory and hold slaves as he could in a state where slavery was expressly authorized by law. This was in answer to the doctrine then affirmed by Alabama, Virginia and Florida in state convention, that "wherever the flag of the Union goes it carries slavery with it." The position of Tilden in 1848 was that the principle of the ordinance of 1787, by which slavery was excluded from all unsettled territories of the United States should be applied to the then immense territory of Oregon and the territory ceded by Mexico whenever territorial governments were established by congress, and he then favored the including of a provision excluding slavery in any act passed by congress for the erection of a territorial government. Tilden participated in the free soil convention which nominated Van Buren and Adams in June, 1848, and was the ablest champion [illegible] of the cause of free soil that his party [illegible]. He persisted in his course [illegible], when he opposed the repeal of the Missouri compromise. He refused in 18[illegible] to join with Preston King in organizing the republican party, saying that it would probably fail and if it succeeded it would ruin the country. In 1860 when he bitterly opposed [illegible], Horace Greeley charged him with [illegible] with a meeting [illegible] oppose the annexation of Texas [illegible] the Evening Post in October [illegible] trine of [illegible] tories and the exclusion [illegible] slave states and said we had no [illegible] with slavery in a Southern [illegible] slavery in Brazil. [illegible] believed, in [illegible] non-action on the subject of slavery [illegible] this letter of October, 1860, as follows: "I may hear the wailing cry of selfish men as I stand on the straining timbers and watch the rage of the sea. My mind is filled, my heart swells with the thought that yon wave which towers before us will engulf more of human happiness and human hopes than have perished in any one catastrophe since the world began." He denounced Chase's financial policy and as late as February, 1863, wrote the Evening Post that Lincoln was a man "whose statesmanship was derived from one term in congress, a career at nisi prius in Illinois, long service at county conventions, some acquaintance with the lobby at Springfield, who had now to deal with the greatest questions and most complicated forces of modern history." He lived to see Lincoln rise superior to his contemptuous opinion. He was a Johnson man in 1866, and in 1868 Tilden bitterly said of the republican party: "The grim Puritan of New England stretches his hand down the Atlantic coast to the decaying and receding African and says, 'Come, let us rule this continent together.'" And this was the final political philosophy of a man who was the ablest champion of free soil in 1848, when he was 34 years of age. He had better died in that bright and generous morning hour of his best manhood, even as Caleb Cushing ought to have died before he became the apostate of the anti-slavery opinions of his youth, and ended by becoming so brutal a defender of slavery that Gov. Andrew refused to trust him when he offered his military services to Massachusetts in 1861.

Tacoma is exceedingly anxious to witness the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad across the Cascade mountains. If the labor could be had the road would be so far completed that the cars could be run over it, in a few months; the main tunnel, of course, will require a longer time. There is a fine stroke of retributive justice for Tacoma in the fact that her irrational, unjust and criminal treatment of the Chinese last winter has postponed the completion of the railroad upon which she builds all her hopes; and moreover, there is a new lesson for Tacoma in the fact that her railroad can now be completed only by employment of the very same labor which she permitted and encouraged her vile rabble to assail, maltreat and expel. The Puget sound country needs every Chinese laborer who was in it. It needs them not only for railroad work, but for clearing land, picking hops and other employments, and it was phenomenal folly, at once short-sighted and criminal, that encouraged, or even permitted, the expulsion of laborers whom the country needs so much. Men of sense there always knew this, but they allowed themselves to be intimidated and borne down by the furious howl of bummers and anarchists, who, it is needless to say, can't now be hired to work on the railroad, clear land or pick the hop crop of the country.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL

The river and harbor appropriation bill, which at last is a law, provides between five and six hundred thousand dollars for works in Oregon and Washington. All things considered, the appropriation is quite liberal. We have not the splendid sums promised by sanguine politicians, but we have something more than our per centage and enough to put every work now under construction well forward. The money will be available almost immediately, and in ten days will be in the hands of the engineer officers here.

The administration of river and harbor works in Oregon and Washington is divided. Major W A Jones has charge of the Columbia river and its tributaries, excepting the work at the bar, which is under Capt. Chas F. Powell. Major Jones's jurisdiction thus extends over the river channels between Portland and the ocean, the Cascade locks, the upper Columbia and Snake rivers, the port of Portland, the upper Willamette river and the Cowlitz river. Work will begin at all these places almost immediately. Along the rivers there is no exposure, so it is easy to begin where work was left off last year. The item of greatest importance at this time is the Columbia river channel, which is now in its usual summer condition. Major Jones will cause the channel to be deepened at once at St. Helens bar by temporary work (probably sluicing) and will continue the permanent work which he hopes will obviate the necessity of sluicing in future. In the appropriation bill as passed there is an item of $ [illegible]000 for Portland harbor, the beginning of a work which it is hoped will be assisted from year to year. The idea of the engineers is to increase the harbor room by removing the bar at the head of Ross's island. The plan is an excellent one and the beginning will be made [illegible] soon.

Capt. Powell's jurisdiction extends over all the coast works north of the California line, the Coquille and Umpqua rivers, and the rivers which flow into Puget sound. Most of these works are very heavy and require time for preparation, such as getting out stone, piling, etc. It will not be possible to do more than prepare for work and mass materials before the seasons of storms when the actual work of jetty extension cannot be prosecuted to advantage. Capt. Powell will not, therefore, attempt anything more than preliminary work this season either at the Coquille, Coos bay, Yaquina bay or the Columbia bar. Everything will be ready and active operations on these works will begin about May 1.

The delays in congress by which the passage of the appropriation bill was put off till midsummer have postponed practically our more important harbor works for a full year. If the bill had been passed before the 1st of April, as it should have been, then the works at the mouth of the Columbia, at Yaquina bay and [illegible] so much needed would have been in progress at this time. What is true here is true all over the country. A whole year has been lost, and a dilatory congress is to blame for it.

MISLED BY THE MUGWUMPS

In an article on the failure of Mr. Cleveland as president to harmonize and lead the democratic party, the New York World, the leading democratic paper of the United States, says:

In justice to Mr Cleveland it must be remembered that the people elected him with a full knowledge of his inexperience in national affairs and his ignorance of public men outside of the local politicians he encountered in his capacity as sheriff, mayor and governor. The mugwump newspapers and politicians who worshiped him for saving them from Blaine showered such indiscriminate and fulsome praise upon him from the first that it was not surprising he should be led into indiscreet action. They told him that he was better than his party, that he was superior in his qualifications for the presidency to Jefferson or Jackson, and they fed him with the idea that to mingle with politicians or listen to the counsels of congressmen would be a lowering of the presidential dignity as well as treason to civil service reform.

This indiscreet adulation and selfish counsel might well have turned the head of a man with some experience of politicians on his side. In Mr Cleveland's case they had the effect of setting him against his party and regarding it as a danger against which he must fortify.

The mugwumps, then, have misled Mr. Cleveland and alienated him from his party, and this is the reason why the party is drifting along without definite policy, and why there is no harmony between its president and its leaders in congress and throughout the country.

Let THE OREGONIAN, as courteously as possible, inform the Tacoma Ledger that it is "minding its own business" when it talks about the failure of the two houses of congress to agree upon any measure of forfeiture in relation to the land grant of the Northern Pacific. That company holds a grant that covers a large area of land in Oregon, where it has built no road, and never intends to build, and Oregon has a right to demand that it be forced to let go, at once and unconditionally. Large numbers of people in Washington territory are also interested in this demand, since the same grant covers a great area there, and THE OREGONIAN in demanding this forfeiture in the name of the people of this state and territory, is strictly "minding its own business." What the corporation is chiefly [illegible] for [illegible] is its purpose to hold this grant where it never will build a road [illegible] till relinquishment of it can be made a condition of confirmation to itself of everything else it claims. To this end its lobby at Washington, including its senators, have played one house against the other and prevented any result.

What the New York World's Washington correspondent says of J. H. Mitchell, viz., that "on account of his previous record he has absolutely no standing or influence in the senate beyond that of an individual," accords with what every other impartial observer has been saying of him ever since he re-entered the senate. He is known as the creature and servant of corporations, as an unscrupulous lobbyist and jobber, infamous alike in his public and private character. Therefore in the senate he is simply a blank. This was foretold before his election. Who has heard of anything whatever accomplished by him during this long session of the senate?

A correspondent furnishes an illustration of thrift in a small way in Washington county. An industrious and prudent man, with a diligent wife and a helpful boy, has in two years, besides making a living, cleared up a little farm in the woods and built and paid for a good house. The illustration is instructive because it shows what can be done by pluck, industry and frugality even during the period of hard times. This instance is by no means an isolated or uncommon one. Travel about the by-ways of the country anywhere reveals such cases in considerable number.

Though time and space are too valuable to do much in that line, yet once in a while it may be allowable to prick the bladder of bogus journalism, bragging of its achievements. It may therefore be remarked that the pretended telegraphic report of the Grand Army parade produced by bogus journalism and boasted of as a superior thing, was cribbed almost bodily out of San Francisco papers of old dates. The whole programme was printed by the papers of that city a week in advance, and a pair of scissors in two minutes produced a couple of columns which, when introduced and set off by one hundred words sent by telegraph, enabled bogus journalism to score another of its great strokes of enterprise. Sandwiched with it was the usual amount of stale stuff clipped from Eastern papers and presented under bogus dates as "latest news."

Arrangements have been made with a well known writer of Yamhill county to prepare for THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN a historical sketch of the county, together with all the varied data relative to its interests and peoples. Our correspondent will shortly interest himself in the proposed undertaking. The announcement of the time wherein the same will be given to our readers will be made known at a no distant day.

Singular notion that of the water commission that the people of Portland have no actual interest in and have no right to know anything about their own proper business.

POLITICS IN IDAHO

The Boise Statesman has a long article devoted to political affairs in Idaho, in which one Onderdonk, presumably the new editor of Portland's long felt want, is dealt with in pretty rough terms. It seems that Onderdonk was a political juggler and party marplot in Idaho. The brother, it appears, played himself out in that territory and consequently moved on. We reprint part of the Statesman's article: "There is no disguising the fact that a few republicans have tried to work mischief in the party. The head and front of this mischief dates back to the quarrel of Onderdonk and two or three others with Governor Bunn because they could not control certain nominations in the last legislature, chief among which was Onderdonk's desire to be again nominated for controller. * * No sooner had the governor made his nominations than this little trio especially Onderdonk made an open personal quarrel with him and secret conclaves were held and articles were published in the bastard republican and democratic papers in this city against Bunn as the result of their disaffection. Naturally enough this little clique had a few friends and the work of doing mischief to the party headed by Onderdonk culminated in a sort of secret call of the republican committee at Shoshone last September. No object for this meeting was stated and Onderdonk and his friends secured a majority of the proxies of the committee and thought to have things their own way, but the meeting of the committee developed the fact that the object was to read Mr D P B Pride and the Statesman out of the party and sustain Onderdonk. The proxy committee did some very dirty work in the scheme of the dirtiest work which Onderdonk introduced was too much even for the proxy committee and it was shelved. The work of the committee was fully exposed in the Statesman at the time and we would not again refer to it if the Onderdonk clique would let it sleep and be forgotten as it should be. Mr Onderdonk well knew that he was about to leave the territory and could take no further action with the party, but this was his last effort to throw firebrands and do mischief. The resolutions passed at the meeting of that committee authorizing the chairman to make the apportionment and call the convention to nominate the next candidate were not discussed and probably bought nothing of at the time except by Onderdonk, whose subsequent conduct in making a pretended call and apportionment from the state of Oregon shows a deeper turpitude than one would naturally credit him with. The effort to sustain him in such work means no good to the party. The only way that the party can proceed harmoniously and with a hope of success is to wholly ignore and forget the Onderdonk [illegible]. If there is any one who wants to do him reverence or nurse his sores, that person should go to Oregon where they can have sweet communion and suck pap out of the same bottle. He has nothing to do with Idaho politics."

AUTHORS AS HUSBANDS

Some of the names in our list of men of letters who were married are not those of authors who depended or depend—for some are still living—on their writings for subsistence, but nearly all depend on their writings for their reputation. As all of these men were husbands and most of them fathers, such a list may serve to show that husbands and fathers need not despair of achieving reputation as authors, though in literature as in other pursuits a man generally secures some measure of success before he marries. This however is far from being always the case.

St Augustine was a father if not a husband before he was a saint or author. The married poets, it will be noticed, are numerous. Few of the best are missing. This is exactly as might have been expected. The genuine poet is above all things a lover. If some eminent poets are missing from our list, which by the way does not pretend to be exhaustive, it would be rash to accuse them of insensibility to the fascination of the fair, for by the missing name there usually hangs a sad tale of its appointed love. Camoens for example was twice banished because of his passion for one of the queen's ladies at the court of Lisbon and although his love was returned the fates were so unkind that she died before he could claim her.

It would take a volume to notice all the interesting facts about authors and their wives. Here are a few. Of Tycho Brahe we read that being a great admirer of the fair sex, he conceived a violent inclination for Christina, a beautiful country girl, the daughter of a neighboring peasant, and alienated his family till the king commanded them to be reconciled to him. John Knox, in spite of his Blast of the Trumpet Against the Monstrous Regiment of Women, married two of them and had children by both.

Sir John Mandeville religiously declined an honorable alliance to the sultan of Egypt, whose daughter he might have espoused if he would have abjured Christianity. Burton, as far as we have been able to learn, was never married. This again is as we expected. The Anatomy of Melancholy is not the kind of book that anybody but a lonely bachelor would think of writing. Young, author of the "Night Thoughts," married a lady with money, and so did Dr Johnson. Cruden, the author of the "Concordance," tried to do the same and addressed numerous pamphlets to the object of his choice, but she remained obdurate in spite of these and other extraordinary means of wooing.

A Remedy for Lung Diseases

Dr. Robert Newton, late President of the Eclectic College of the city of New York and formerly of Cincinnati, Ohio, used Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam very extensively in his practice, as many of his patients now living, and restored to health by the use of this invaluable medicine can amply testify. He always said that so good a remedy ought to be prescribed freely by every physician as a sovereign remedy in all cases of lung diseases. It cures consumption and has no equal for all pectoral complaints.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

QUACK ADVERTISING SCHEMES.—Every few months some one comes along with a new advertising racket that proposes to give to the advertiser the benefit of more circulation than all the newspapers in the state combined for almost nothing. One man promises a panorama of the streets of Portland with the name of the advertiser on his store for something like $[illegible] or $10. Another bilk promises to print the card of every business man who subscribes for his U. S. magazine, which is only $2 a year. Each swindler reaps a rich harvest. It's so cheap you know, that every house can afford it. But the panorama never comes, neither does the magazine, and the victims smile and are ready to be bilked again. Then there is another class of traveling fakirs one grade better than the out-and-out swindlers. They come into a town, show the rough sketch of what purports to be an illuminated map of the town, say they intend to publish 10,000, or 50,000, or 100,000 copies of the work, and will print a card on the margin for say $20. The work turns out to be one part map to four parts advertising. The few who want the map cut it out and throw away the precious advertisements, which are neither ornamental nor useful. Any man with a glib tongue can secure $1000 or $1500 on such a racket from alleged business men of Portland who can never see the necessity of advertising in a legitimate newspaper. The fakir gives out the job to a printer, pays a hundred dollars or so for the work, shows the advertiser a copy of the map when finished, collects his money and skips out to the next town with several hundred dollars in his pocket. He has only one object in getting the money. It is not of the least concern to him whether a single map is distributed or not. What is written above needs no application. Portland is not free from traveling fakirs nor from foolish men who are certain now to get nothing for their money as they have in times past.

HOWARD THE SWINDLER.—Frank Howard, the thorough-paced scoundrel now in the city jail, is ministered to by a woman known as Mrs. Binnott, who claims to be his wife. She keeps a disreputable lodging house at the corner of Fourth and Yamhill streets, a resort of opium fiends and such cattle. Yesterday she sent a basket of delicacies to the jail for Howard, concealed in which was a flask of whisky. He did not get the liquor. It is a few ancient and silly women like this one who have supported the rascal in luxury while in this town, and have supplied him with funds for his various flittings, and the well-grounded hope of finding another silly old victim is what always draws him back here. He and his pal, when he was last here, swindled a young fellow from Victoria out of over a thousand dollars by selling him a share in an alleged business. The fellow is a rakish devil-may-care chap, with enough of good looks to make an impression on the susceptible hearts of the love-lorn middle-aged and homely women, and there seems to be a never ending supply of such here, as Howard never fails to win the affections of one or more on every visit here. It is to be hoped that his nances [illegible] who was so infamously swindled and robbed by this scoundrel and his last dupe may be able to establish the charge, and that he may be sent back to the penitentiary, which is the only fitting place for him.

POLICE COURT.—In the police court yesterday Frank Howard was arraigned on a charge of the larceny of $[illegible]. He pleaded not guilty and asked an examination, which was set for to-day. His bail was fixed at $500. The case of H. A. Albright was again continued on account of the absence of Emma Leich, the principal witness. She is said to be in Vancouver. Tim Garwood, an ex-convict and who recently broke jail at Astoria, was fined $15 for fighting with J. C. Grier. A like case against Grier was dismissed for the reason that it was shown that Garwood made an unprovoked assault on him while he only defended himself. Wm. Bruce had an examination on a charge of threatening to kill his wife. It is a case of domestic infelicity. Mrs. Bruce and her husband have had some disputes lately about his providing money for her support, and she left him. She claims he threatened to take her life, and this he denies. Bruce is a carpenter and a good workman, and claims he works hard to support his family, and only on the day of the arrest went to see his wife where she was stopping, gave her $60 and begged her to return home. Judge Dement will pass on the case to-day.

A WOMAN WITH TEN CHILDREN WANTS WORK.—On South Front street, near the corner of Sherman, resides a Mrs. Bradley, who arrived here from Montana about a week ago. She has ten children, the oldest of which is 10 years of age. The family consists of one set of triplets, assorted, two sets of twins and three singles. The mother has to support this somewhat extensively developed family, and is anxious to get work. She is a dressmaker, but cannot get any work in that line, and is willing to do washing. This is the statement furnished by a kind-hearted neighbor. To the most superficial observer it must seem that a woman with that kind of a family has plenty of dressmaking and washing on hand, to say nothing of patching and darning, and in the natural order of things she should have two or three nurses and a cook and a house with a farm and grocery store attachment. Seriously, the woman needs assistance and should be aided in providing for her little ones. Nothing at this writing is known of her husband. His fate was probably terrible and lingering, boiling lead or oil or something of that kind.

ABOUT ENTERTAINING VISITING VETERANS.—Some preparations have been made for giving a public reception to prominent members of the Grand Army of the Republic who will go East via Portland. There will be a camp-fire, speeches and songs. A well known citizen suggests that a fine feature would be a concert at the pavilion. The expense would not be heavy, and there would be no trouble about raising the money. No doubt the members of the old Orchestral Union could be gathered together and drilled into rendering a good programme. It will not take much effort to organize a strong male chorus, and with one or two good solos an evening's musical programme which would please visitors and residents alike could be presented. Enough members of the Grand Army remained in Portland to get up a first class reception to the prominent members of the order who may honor Portland with their presence. The idea of a concert is an excellent one and the committee may take it up.

LOAN AUTHORIZED.—George W. Weidler and Joseph Holladay, receivers of the Holladay estate, yesterday petitioned Judge Stearns for permission to borrow $20,000 to pay an assessment on 1048 shares of stock of the Oregon Transfer company levied by the directors, D. P. Thompson, Henry Failing, H. W. Corbett, George H. Flanders and John Kiernan, and payable August 2, and extension granted for payment to August 6. The assessment is necessary to enable the Oregon Transfer company to pay a note given on account of the purchase of the F. G. Pierce Transfer company. The 1048 shares of stock in the Oregon Transfer company is valued at $50,000. Notice was served on Ben Holladay's attorneys that the petition had been filed, and as no objection was made an order was made by the court authorizing the making of the loan.

WANTS A HABEAS CORPUS.—James Kelly, who is confined in the county jail awaiting the action of the grand jury on a charge of murder in poisoning Frederick Kalasohn, the sailor, yesterday got out a writ of habeas corpus, which was made returnable before Judge Stearns on the [illegible] inst. Kelly complains that after he was arrested he was locked up in a dark cell and kept there for five days, during which time he was prevented from having communication with the outside world, and that he was therefore unable to procure necessary witnesses and compelled to go into court without them as they became scattered. Kelly claims his business is being neglected, that he was held without bail and can give bail in a reasonable sum, wherefore he asserts he is unlawfully restrained of his liberty.

A CHEAP JOURNEY.—Two young fellows about 18 years of age arrived here a day or two since from Sullivan county, New York. They belonged to well to do families, but had come to the conclusion that life was not worth living if they could not come to Portland. They knew that their parents would oppose their coming, so packed their effects and quietly took the train, their joint capital amounting to just $18. They were three weeks getting here, and when they arrived they had a [illegible] made of a gunnysack, which was a [illegible], [illegible] and a razor, and they had 60 cents in coin and some clothes on their backs. As soon as they [illegible] also they intend to publish a book about their journey, which will contain a full account of the pleasures of riding on a brake beam.

THE CASINO ASSIGNMENT.—The assignment [illegible] lately [illegible] the Casino opera house company, Charles W. [illegible], president, Emil Weber, secretary, shows an indebtedness of $[illegible], divided among eighty creditors, including liquor dealers, bill posters, [illegible] and chorus singers, etc. The principal creditors and amounts due each are: Emil Weber, on promissory notes, $[illegible] 60; Emil Weber, $[illegible]; Chas. W. Frush, on promissory note, $[illegible]; August Frazer, $[illegible]; W. J. Hume, $600; H. Weinhard, $1[illegible] 50; Leslie Cook, $201 [illegible]. The assets consist of the chairs, tables, furniture, fixtures, scenery, operatic costumes and so forth contained in the Casino opera house building, of the value of $11 01.

WHIPPED HIS SON.—George A. Pleasance was tried in Justice Bushwiler's court yesterday, charged with assault and battery on his son, Frederick J. Pleasance, aged 18 years. The charge was preferred by the son, who testified that his father beat him brutally and kicked him like a dog. The father denies, claiming that he administered only a necessary chastisement. With this conflict of testimony the court, whose desire is to do simple justice, is in a dilemma and has taken the case under advisement. Pleasance was once before in court on a similar charge. It seems to be one of those domestic troubles that never should get into the courts, but some way or another always do.

BASE BALL.—The Shoshones returned from Seattle yesterday. They play the Portlands at the Oaks to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 and the Willamettes at [illegible] Sunday. Their victory at Seattle Tuesday was a surprise. The Portlands defeated the Shoshones 10 to 3. The Seattle Reds five weeks ago defeated the Portlands 18 to [illegible], and then the Shoshones defeat the Seattles [illegible] to [illegible]. Next day the Seattles are on top. But such is baseball. The Portlands do not imagine they are going to have a walk over to-morrow, and bets that the Willamettes will win Sunday will not go begging.

COVERED UP.—Several of the large stands of Miss Jeffreys Lewis's paper were covered up yesterday by Cole's circus brigade, much to the chagrin of Manager Howe of the New Market, who was unable to prevent it, owing to the circus having the boards under contract for August. This will not make any difference in Miss Lewis's business, for she would do a "circus business" next week if there was not a sheet of paper on the walls.

CATTLE TO ALASKA.—Carpenters were engaged yesterday in enclosing a portion of the lower deck of the Ancon forward with movable posts and slats as compartments for carrying live stock. Capt. Carroll on his last trip took up thirty head of cattle from Port Townsend. There will soon be lots of live stock in Alaska. If they get one more mule in Sitka they will have a span, and will begin to put on style.

YAQUINA BAY EXCURSION.—A HALF WEEK.—This exceedingly hot weather nothing can be better for an outing than the proposed excursion next Tuesday. The ride will be through the garden of Oregon and over the Coast range. The price is cheap, only $[illegible]. The moon will be at its full, giving possible moonlight walks or drives on the beach in the moonlight, boating or bathing and fishing in the bay. A whole week of rest [illegible] porting [illegible] while at the bay not much more than if one stayed at home [illegible] get your [illegible] blankets at any rate your [illegible] and [illegible] tacked [illegible] in the excursion.

STREET [illegible].—Yesterday forenoon a bunch of cattle about seventeen in number were driven down to the E street ferry to be taken over to the east side to pasture. While waiting for the ferry they got scared and broke away from the [illegible] and scattered around town. One of them [illegible] [illegible] to be [illegible] was shot and after considerable trouble the others were collected and driven to the bottom below town. When it is necessary to drive cattle through town it should be done before business has commenced in the morning.

SHOPLIFTER CAUGHT.—A Chinaman, who of late occupied his spare time in shoplifting, was tripped at 5 o'clock last evening in Sealy, Mason & Co.'s store. He picked up a box of cigars and was suddenly seized with such a cramp that he had that he could not let go of them until assisted in doing so by one of the attaches of the place. The heathen was taken to the police station by Officer Martin and booked for larceny. He gave the name of Ah Doo, and Dennis Maloney makes the complaint against him.

LIBRARY DIRECTORS.—At a meeting of the directors of the Portland library held on Wednesday evening Mr. Milton W. Smith was elected a director to fill the unexpired term of Addison C. Gibbs, resigned. The term expires in 188[illegible]. Mr. C. H. Wood was elected to fill the unexpired term of Capt. Lanson, resigned. The term expires in 1890. The election to fill the unexpired term of M. W. Fechheimer, deceased, was postponed till the next meeting.

COMPLAINING OF HOG RANCH NUISANCES.—A number of residents on the macadam road filed a petition with the county commissioners yesterday complaining of a nuisance in that neighborhood in the shape of filthy hog ranches. An order was made that the district attorney be directed to investigate the matter, and if necessary prosecute the parties responsible for the existence of the nuisance complained of.

TO CRATER LAKE.—Persons who desire to visit the wonderful Crater Lake can find teams of all sorts at reasonable rates at Kenney & Norman's livery stable, Medford, Jackson county. The distance from Medford to the lake is [illegible] miles and the route embraces the magnificent scenery of Florence Rock, Rogue River falls and Castle falls.

INFORMATION WANTED.—Inquiry is made at the postoffice in this city for Dennis Kennedy, Jno. C. Wilson, J. D. Farmer, Richard Richardson, Geo. Sprengwald, Kate Chillas, Wm. Otis Thayer, W. H. Morton, Henry Krause, E. M. Spangle and Mrs. M. Ellison.

The contractor for H. Failing's new building, George Langford, has about completed his work. The massy appearing and handsome cornice is being put in place and the roof is being built and the bricklayers will finish the fire walls in about three days. The building will present a very handsome appearance.

The Albany Herald hopes that the little shad hatched in the Willamette and now in the Columbia will grow to be some size and amount to something in the future. They will if they are given half a show, but so long as shadlets half a pound in weight are scooped in down here, just so long the Herald's just hope will be deferred.—Astorian.

THE WATER QUESTION

PORTLAND, Aug. 5, 1886.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The committee of fifteen, known as the "water committee," appear to be in earnest in their efforts to have the city of Portland own its own water supply.

In doing this, however, they should not ignore the fact that there are a large number of persons who have as much interest in this effort being a success as their own committee, consequently the committee should give all publicity to their movements and proceedings, and in that way they could secure information that they might not get in any other manner, especially from persons living outside of the city. The writer of this communication has had much better opportunity for observation in regard to the water supplies from the mountains than the members of this committee or their engineer. For instance, the writer has seen branches of Hood river frozen solid in winter, and at not a greater altitude than where it is proposed to tap Bull Run. This is a subject the committee would do well to examine into, and one that I doubt whether any member of the committee has ever thought of in their investigations.

Only last year the city of Vienna, Austria, was without water for fifteen days, from the fact that the water source of supply was frozen up.

This is a matter of vast consequence to this city. Suppose the water committee should contract with parties who furnish iron pipe and begin the work of laying the same before any of them know anything about this matter, and in this way expend three or four hundred thousand dollars, as has been done in other works of like character, could the city stand such an experiment?

What the city wants is cheap water, either from a mountain supply or from the river, but they do not want to rush into an indebtedness of $[illegible] and not accomplish the purpose.

Gentlemen of the committee, the taxpayers of this city want to know what you are doing, and they demand of your secretary that the proceedings shall be subject to the inspection of any one who is an interested party, and in this matter all water consumers are interested.

The bill under which this committee is acting provides that the members of the committee of fifteen shall pay taxes to a certain amount, yet the bill also provides that the water rates shall pay the interest on the bonds and the bonds themselves at maturity. Now the man who pays a water tax is just as much interested in this matter as the millionaires who are on this committee, and he has just as much right to know what the committee is doing, because he is just as much interested, although he is excluded from being a member of the committee because he don't pay into the county or city treasury the amount of taxes fixed by this bill. JUSTICE.

Annual Report of St. David's Church—An Alleged Robbery—Personal and General Notes

The following is the annual report of the rector of St. David's church of this city made to the thirty third annual convocation of the Protestant Episcopal church held in Astoria:

I also held services during the month of August at Nestucca bay and baptized five children.

ALLEGED ROBBERY

A man named W. A. Anderson came in from the [illegible] Wednesday and put up at the Riverside [illegible]. The same evening about 9 o'clock he claims to have left the hotel, and while walking down J street toward Water, a man in his shirt sleeves and another fairly dressed approached him and struck him a heavy blow on the face and head with a sand bag or something similar, which rendered him unconscious, and he knew nothing more until some time past midnight when he recovered. He claims he was robbed of $[illegible] in coin, which he had in his pockets at the time he left the hotel. The man's clothing was besmeared with blood, and his story about being knocked down would seem probable. Some of the boarders at the hotel doubt that he had that amount of money, as he had not paid his hotel bill. Anderson is a member of Sumner post No. 1[illegible], G. A. R., of this city, and a comrade loaned him a sufficient sum of money yesterday morning to take him to a ranch about twelve miles north of Salem, where he claims to be engaged to take charge of a threshing machine.

DISSATISFIED WITH THE MAILS

Since the mail service from East Portland to [illegible] postoffice in Clackamas county has been changed from daily to tri weekly the people all along the route are much dissatisfied. They have several petitions in circulation, asking to have the daily service restored. One hundred names were put on the petition at Mt. Tabor postoffice, and as many more have been secured between there and Sandy. Several important places are served by this route, and the reinstatement of the daily service is one of their most earnest requirements.

NOTES

George A. Beck and Levi Knott went to the coast yesterday.

Miss Dora Humphrey returned from Eugene City yesterday after an absence of a month.

Mr. Fred Weatherford, formerly of this city, has accepted a situation as bookkeeper at the Indian school near Salem.

Charles Atwood, wife and daughter started for Eastern Oregon yesterday in a wagon. They intend residing in that region hereafter.

Miss Bertie Thomas, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Arlington Banks, for several months, leaves for her home at Little Falls, Lewis county, W. T., to-day.

A letter just received from Ohio, gives the pleasing information that Miss Annie [illegible] arrived home in safety, and that she will be joined in wedlock the first of the month to Dr. [illegible], a very worthy gentleman of the Buckeye state.

EUGENE NOTES

Mr. G. H. Park has the contract for erecting a [illegible] and fine and costly residence for Hon. George P. Harris.

Farmers in this vicinity are harvesting and threshing a crop fair in quantity and excellent in quality.

Numerous fine residences, besides a large number of cottages, are being added to the dwelling facilities of Eugene.

Mrs. Elizabeth Luckey, an aged and highly esteemed lady and pioneer, died at her residence in this city on the 2d inst.

Mr. G. H. Park is erecting a frame business building with two rooms on Ninth street. The will find occupants as soon as completed.

A large number of our citizens are away from home at the various resorts and watering places trying to keep cool and enjoy seasons of rest and recreation.

An occasional immigrant locates in the western part of our county, but not one half of our legitimate share when the real merits of the region are considered.

Hop raisers wear smiling faces. Some of the Lane county crop is already engaged at from 25 to 30 cents per pound. The yield will not be so great as some former years, but the quality promises to be excellent.

Just now Eugene is beginning to realize the urgent need of water works, and it is a wonder some capitalist has not erected them before now. With the natural situation and necessities such as they are water works would pay a good dividend from the completion.

The Matlock three story brick approaches completion. It will be the best in the city. Two brick business buildings finished and occupied there [illegible] nearly done and two more yet to be built will complete the permanent additions to the business facilities of Eugene for the present season and [illegible] not a vacant room in town on any of the business streets.

THE BLACK SAND MINES

Some eighteen months ago Mr. George Crosby of New York was out here looking up the black sand mines of Oregon. He made but a brief visit owing to other business and left the matter in the hands of J. H. Fisk, who has just received the following letter, which speaks for itself:

NEW YORK CITY, July 2[illegible], 1886.

J. H. Fisk, Esq.—Dear Sir: After about one year spent in Honduras, Central America I return and find letters from you that came to New York shortly after I left. I also find a bag of magnetic black sand sent to me from Crescent City. Now I am about to tackle the black sand business in big shape and will put it through this time, as I have all the money that is necessary to do it with and will begin at once. I know you can assist me very much in the matter. I would be pleased if you will send me some of the platinum sand that you had in one of the little bottles in your cabinet, and whatever else you have that would benefit me, a copy of your analysis of the sand that you made when I was there. I lost the address of the party who sent me the sand. I think it was from Crescent City, and I wish you would write him and tell him to send me on two barrels of the same sand that he sent me a year ago. Tell him to send it by express with all charges to George Crosby, care J. B. Brewster, Twenty fifth street and Lexington avenue, New York; also advise him by wire (if possible) to write me immediately. Attend to this as soon as you can and wire me any expense. In the meantime you put an advertisement in some good paper about black sand and find out where the most and best of it is. I am in for business now and want all the information I can get on the matter as soon as possible. If you have any parties' address that you think of on the coast wire me same. Lose no time in this.

GEO. CROSBY.

WORK WINS

PORTLAND, Or., Aug [illegible].

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I took a short trip into the interior of Washington county the first of the present week. While so engaged I became acquainted with one circumstance which may be of public interest. A Mr. [illegible], situated about seventeen or eighteen miles southwest of Portland. I made acquaintance of an elderly German named Meibus. He came to Oregon two years ago from Wisconsin. He never had any experience in farming. He went to [illegible] and bought eight acres mostly wild land, though there was an old house and barn on a corner of the premises and slight improvements made around them, paid $50 an acre therefor, and went to work, assisted a portion of the time by his boys, two of whom were very nearly grown. Now he has the entire tract cleared of trees, most of the stumps have been taken out, additions have been made to the barn, a new house built which is nicely painted and comfortable throughout, and he has five head of neat cattle, one horse, a few pigs and about forty chickens. Besides he has raised produce enough to support all well and something to sell. I noticed good wheat, oats, clover, potatoes and many other kinds of vegetables, all showing good yield and giving evidence of careful cultivation. All this year his sole helper in the field has been a boy, aged 14 years. The income of the place has provided for the entire living for himself, wife, daughter and boy during the two years. This is but a single illustration of what any man of thrifty habits may do upon almost any tract of equal size within a radius of twenty miles of Portland. Strangers coming here seeking homes would do well to inquire into the chances of obtaining a few acres of ground near to Portland. By industry in a short time these tracts may be converted into small farms, which if well tilled will surely earn their owners a competence and something more.

THE ILWACO POSTOFFICE.

ILWACO, July 31.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In a recent issue of THE OREGONIAN we notice the annual grumble about the manner in which our postmistress discharges her duties. Considering the assertions made unjust and unwarrantable the writer, who knows by experience the true facts of the case, begs in the name of justice to the accused official to make a statement that can be substantiated if necessary. On arrival of the mail here it is immediately assorted and distributed. H. H. Tinker's team carries out a portion of the mail to the Fort Portland camp. A sack is also made up for the carrier of the through mail to drop into F. H. Canan's box in front of the Harvest Home hotel. Many cottagers and campers receive daily mail this way. Considerable mail comes in care of J. L. Stout, of the Sea View hotel, and is delivered daily. Eddie Ward on his fleet footed pony rushes out to the weather beach daily with mail for many seaside resorters who remunerate him for his trouble. On the showcases in our stores can be seen lots of mail matter sent in care of the storekeepers. Some people prefer to have it come that way and be forwarded on the grocery wagons. In fact, there is very little mail left in the postoffice.

By their OREGONIANS are [illegible] subscribers that live here in town. Every facility at hand is used for the rapid delivery. If at all there is any mail it is one [illegible] the party [illegible] it is addressed [illegible]. The [illegible] is that mail does not come [illegible] [illegible] who inquire for it. Therefore they grumble, and inquire [illegible] [illegible] for their [illegible]. I know that the mail arrives regularly [illegible] [illegible] by noon time. The salary [illegible] postmistress is percent of the amount of [illegible] [illegible] sale of stamps. There is nothing [illegible] [illegible] Weekly and Daily Astorian should have [illegible] but they did not. Next [illegible] [illegible] stamped Seaside or Ilwaco [illegible] missed. Who is to blame for that? Why the Astorian's [illegible]. Last summer [illegible] carried daily this [illegible] all week sent to Astoria. Her [illegible] [illegible] three letters also sent [illegible] [illegible] Astoria postmaster was told daily the same [illegible] all until the sixth day when she received [illegible] [illegible] letters. The package has never been heard [illegible]. Examination proved that those letters [illegible] posted [illegible] postmarked regularly at this [illegible]. This occurred during Postmaster [illegible] in that office. About the same time there appeared in item in THE OREGONIAN stating that [illegible] in her a [illegible] a letter to his family [illegible] [illegible] and although he remained a resident [illegible] days he received home as soon as the letter [illegible]. We believe it after knowing that lady's experience in Astoria, but will guarantee there was [illegible] here.

[illegible] office is open from [illegible] A. M. until [illegible] P. M.

THE DEAD STATESMAN.

Funeral Services to be Held at Greystone Saturday.

THE GRAVE TO BE AT LEBANON

YONKERS Aug. 5.—Private Secretary Smith said this afternoon: The death of the governor was a great shock to us all. He had been quite well for several months. Yesterday morning he did not seem to know that he was dying, and made no allusion to it. He retained consciousness until the last. He died through exhaustion. Gov. Tilden never had as has been stated frequently any attack of paralysis. He had a fall some years ago and this together with rheumatism crippled his right arm. However he used it in writing and in signing checks. He has passed most of the time at Greystone for some years. He has not been in New York since March. The house in Gramercy park has been in care of a man and two female servants. He was a man of very active mind and it has been difficult to get him to take that rest and quiet that he needed at his age. He has had throat trouble for years which caused an impediment in his speech. It was difficult to understand him on that account. It troubled him more particularly [illegible] In [illegible] of [illegible] he went out driving and used his steam yacht the Viking [illegible] a trip to Sandy Hook and other points. He passed much of his time reading, and had probably one of the finest book collections in this country. His reading was of a general character and embodied matters which pertained to other countries. His last cruise in his yacht was last Wednesday when he went down the bay.

Ex-Comptroller Andrew H. Green arrived at Greystone at [illegible] last evening. He told a reporter that the funeral arrangements would not be made until Mr. Pelton's sister, Mrs. Tilden, and her grand-daughter, Mrs. Hazard, arrived from Narragansett Pier. They are expected to-day. He said that nothing could be said at present about the will or disposition of the estate.

Three of Mr. Tilden's nieces arrived last night from Lebanon in company with [illegible] Samuel J. Tilden, Jr., Mrs. Swan and Misses Susie and Ruby Tilden.

It is expected that the funeral will be held at Greystone and the interment will be at New Lebanon in the Presbyterian cemetery. Arrangements have not however been decided upon.

The common council of Yonkers met last night and passed resolutions of regret and sympathy for the family of the dead statesman.

Ex-Gov. Cornell called at Greystone yesterday.

As soon as the death of Tilden became known in the country a large number of telegrams began to come in from his leading political and personal friends.

FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

YONKERS, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Greystone is thronged this morning with friends of the dead statesman, Samuel J. Tilden. Last night the body was embalmed by the undertaker in charge. The body now lies on a catafalque in the southwest corner of the second story of the building. The parlor is being heavily draped with mourning. Funeral services will be held at Greystone Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, after which the remains will be taken to Lebanon, Columbia county, for burial. Mrs. Mary B. Pelton arrived this morning from Narragansett pier. She was driven to Greystone immediately, where she met other members of the family and completed arrangements for the funeral. The pall bearers have not been selected. It is the wish of Mrs. Pelton that the funeral be as private as possible.

Among the names mentioned to serve as pall bearers are Charles A. Dana, J. H. Reed, Smith M. Weed, Hon. Samuel J. Randall, Hon. John Bigelow, Andrew H. Green, President Cleveland and Gov. Hill. The funeral car used will be a square glass hearse with drapings entirely removed. The casket at the funeral will be handled by employes of deceased, among whom will be Butler Gilbert, Coachman Dennis O'Hara, Valet Louis Johannsen and Captain Heavy of the yacht Viking. It is not decided yet who will officiate at the funeral. Mr. Pelton suggested the names of Rev. Dr. Crosby and of Rev. Dr. Hitchcock, the president of the Union theological seminary. The funeral arrangements will probably be completed to-day. A number of telegrams were received to-day. Among them were messages from Gov. Abbott of New Jersey, and ex-Gov. Robinson of New York.

GOV. HILL'S TRIBUTE.

He Reviews the Political Career of Tilden and Says he was a Great Man.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 4.—To-day Gov. Hill said: "I have known Tilden over seventeen years. My first acquaintance with him began when he was chairman of the democratic state committee and being associated with him in the legislature of 1872 to which we both served together. As democratic members of the judiciary committee our political relations became quite intimate and were always of a most pleasant character. He told me on the first day of the session of that legislature that his object in coming there was to secure the removal of corrupt judges of New York. He was the prime mover in all the impeachment proceedings which subsequently followed and he succeeded in all his efforts. He was not especially popular in that legislature and antagonized many members and made enemies. At that time no one would have hardly dared predict that he would become the conceded leader of the party in the state and nation. His growth in public was always slow but sure. He was always courteous and extremely conservative. He was ever on the honest side of every public question and persevered in whatever he undertook.

"After his election for governor his famous war upon the canal ring and his efforts to purify the administration of public affairs brought him into great prominence and gave him the confidence of the people. He however antagonized many prominent men in the democratic party. He had before this, as chairman of the state committee, attacked the Tweed ring in New York city and mainly through his exertions that ring was driven from power. I always believed in his and admired his ability, his courage and his political sagacity. Nearly all the political struggles in which I was engaged for so many years in the southern tier of counties were waged in his behalf. I warmly advocated his nomination for the presidency in 1876 and was elected delegate to the St. Louis convention which nominated him. His campaign was backed upon the single issue of 'reform.'

"I favored his renomination in 1880 and I am one of those who believe that he would have been triumphantly elected. The democratic party frittered away the only issue it had upon which it could have won.

"Tilden in my judgment was one of the greatest men this country has produced. It is sometimes said he was a mere politician. He was however a politician in the highest and best sense of the term. He may have been ambitious but his was always an honorable ambition and one that secured great benefits to the people whom he always faithfully served.

"I can hardly express my feelings at his death. I saw him for the last time at his home in Greystone, where I visited him at his request. Intellectually he was never brighter. We talked freely upon all public questions and I discovered that he was thoroughly posted upon everything that was transpiring. His general health was better than it had been for some time although his voice was very weak. He wrote to me quite frequently all during last winter and spring, and my last letter from him was only a few weeks ago. He has been a firm friend for many years, and aided me by his efforts, friendship and advice in the campaigns of 1882 and 1885. The democratic party has lost one of its distinguished leaders and his place will be hard to fill."

AT NEW YORK.

Tilden's Last Work the Compilation of a Record of the Family.

NEW YORK, Aug. [illegible]—Tilden rarely put his hand to paper and the last time he did so was on Monday of last week to write a telegram of condolence to the father of Hubert O. Thompson. The last letter which he signed was written to Secretary Manning. Manning was the last guest whom he had entertained at his house. Manning was there for a week and left about eleven days ago.

For some months past Tilden has busied himself at odd times with the compilation of a family record of the Tilden family. He traced the line back to John Tilden, who lived in the Vale of Telden, county of Kent, England, in 14[illegible]. Some of the family still reside there. Tilden completed this work last week and Monday of this week he dictated a preface, his last dictation. In it he says the record was compiled from information picked up here and there, jotted down and tossed into a drawer. These he had placed together by aid of memory, and from what help he could get from others. He wrote, he says, because he thought it might be of use to young members of the family as it showed that they had sprung up from an honest sturdy race, of whom they could be proud. It will thus be seen that Tilden's mental vigor was unimpaired by his long illness.

Clubs and hotel corridors are pretty well deserted at this time of the year and little conversation on the death of Tilden could be heard among prominent people on that account. Wherever talk was heard sorrow was expressed in unlimited terms. People of all political parties and callings united in expressing regret for the death of the statesman. "Great man" and "The democratic party's most able champion" were [illegible] terms descriptive of the late leader. Among many a hope was expressed that the funeral ceremonies would take place in this city that an opportunity might be had by the populace to show the extreme respect that is felt for the man's memory. It was predicted that Tilden's funeral would be attended by a gathering of people that has never been equaled in numbers or variety of representation in the history of the country.

The Manhattan club of which Tilden was a member since 1865 will meet on Friday to take appropriate action. The Lotus, [illegible] and Amsterdam clubs display their flags at half mast.

TAMMANY.

The Board of Sachems Adopt Appropriate Resolutions of Respect.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—At a meeting of the board of sachems of Tammany society to-night, with ex-Congressman P. Henry Dugro presiding, the following resolutions, offered by Sachem George H. Forster, and seconded by Sheriff Hugh J. Grant, were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The board of sachems of Tammany society, or Columbian order, has learned with most profound sorrow of the death of Samuel J. Tilden; and

WHEREAS, By his private and public life he deserved and attained the love and admiration of the people as an honest man, patriotic citizen, faithful public servant, great statesman and true son of liberty; who, in his career, evinced by his integrity, energy, honor and ambitions that he possessed abilities of the highest order and character applied to pure and elevated ends; and

WHEREAS, Samuel J. Tilden was at the time of his death a member of this society, was at one time a member of the board of sachems, and was for many years identified with Tammany hall organization in the struggle to maintain a government for the people represented by that organization and opposed to centralized government; and

WHEREAS, It is eminently proper that we as a representative society should take appropriate action to manifest our deep sorrow for his death, record our appreciation of his labors in behalf of free government and to add our tribute of respect to his memory; be it therefore

Resolved, That members of the board of sachems, for themselves and those they represent, deplore the death of Samuel J. Tilden; that as a token of respect to his memory it is hereby recommended that the meeting room of our society be draped in mourning, that the flag on Tammany hall be displayed at half staff from sunrise until sunset each day until after the funeral of the deceased, and that the society be requested to attend the funeral.

AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The news of Tilden's death was received at the capital to-day with every manifestation of sincere regret. No one in the city had received any intimation of the precarious condition of the deceased statesman and many members of congress, including even Mr. Hewitt, [illegible] of the sad event when the resolution [illegible] offered by Morrison was read from the clerk's desk in the house. An associated press bulletin was flashed over a special wire to President Cleveland immediately upon the receipt of the news in Washington, and caused a sensation when it arrived at the White house.

Randall was perhaps more visibly affected than any other member [illegible]. He spoke in deep tones of the loss the democratic party had sustained in Mr. Tilden's death, and his sentiment [illegible] sympathetic response among the rank and file of the democratic party [illegible] of congress, while prominent republicans were not wanting in expressions of sorrow.

Hewitt said that he hardly felt it necessary to [illegible] together the New York delegation to pass suitable resolutions as the action of the [illegible] seemed to fulfill [illegible]. [illegible] remarked sadly [illegible] would not bring him back [illegible]. MEETING OF LIBERAL UNIONISTS.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—A meeting of liberal unionists was held in Devonshire house, residence of Lord Hartington, to-day. Hartington presided. Among those present were Joseph Chamberlain and Jesse Collings. Hartington in a long speech upon the coming parliamentary work advised that all attitude of hostility towards the adherents of the late government be abandoned. The liberal sections should co-operate in an endeavor to secure the enactment of useful legislation and oppose unitedly all proposals looking to separation of the empire. He held that the consolidation of the party was only a matter of time. Towards that end unionists should more identify themselves with the rest of the liberals by taking seats in the commons among them. He reiterated his opinion that the split in the party would soon heal.

Chamberlain followed and said he would willingly accept the leadership of the Hartington resolutions were unanimously adopted that radicals and unionists should work together and that leaders who are privy counsellors should sit on seats in the commons on an equality with the Gladstone leaders.

SITTING OF PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Parliament reassembled this afternoon. Gladstone when he went into the commons took a seat on the front opposition bench. His advent was unnoticed. Chamberlain soon afterward entered and sat down on the same bench, which was occupied also by Hartington and John Morley, Gladstone's chief secretary for Ireland, Hartington sitting between Morley and Chamberlain. The ex-premier rose and went over to the radical dissentient leader, shook hands with him cordially and held a conversation with him and Hartington. The Rt. Hon. Arthur Wellesley Peel, liberal member, was re-elected speaker.

THE ADVANCE IN WOOL.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Since the close of the recent series of wool sales an active demand has prevailed for wool. Six thousand bales of Australian and Cape have been sold at a penny advance in prices. A further rise is developing. A series of sales was opened at Antwerp on August 2d and the attendance of purchasers was large. Prices were 5 per cent dearer than those of May.

THE DECLINE IN SILVER.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The prospects of the appointment of a commission of inquiry into the fall in silver does not affect the market for bar silver. It is believed that relief from the adoption of free coinage in the United States will come sooner than from tardy action by the commission.

A Happy Escape from Bad Speakers.

Boston Globe.

The Rev. Joseph Cook has a sliding trap-door in the ceiling of one of the rooms of his house [illegible] his study, and he uses it when he wants to be [illegible]. This comfortable arrangement excites some unappreciative person to say: "A similar arrangement in public halls, which would enable the audience to escape to the roof when the Rev. Joseph is billed to lecture, would be very popular."

The leprous distilment whose effect
Holds such an enmity with blood of man,
That swift as quicksilver it courses through
The natural gates and alleys of the body and causes the skin to become "barked about most lazar like, with vile and loathsome crust," such are the effects of diseased and morbid bile, the only antidote for which is to cleanse and regulate the liver—an office admirably performed by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

A Good Use for the Nails.

Washington Hatchet.

A political platform is a good deal like the platform which the orators speak from—it is taken down after the campaign. President Cleveland has not done away with his altogether, however. He still keeps the nails for his party to sit on.

If you suffer from looseness of the bowels, Angostura Bitters will surely cure you. Beware of counterfeits and ask your grocer or druggist for the genuine article, prepared by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

FREIGHTS—Arrivals for the week were Thetis, Crown of Italy and Ethelbert under prior charter and Arthurstone and Carrier Dove seeking. No sailings for the week. Of the loading fleet the Con[illegible] and the Remonstrant are well along. Additions to the engaged list are [illegible] arrivals and [illegible] has been confined to the taking up of the River Clyde and [illegible]. Futures show little change. Spot iron holds for [illegible] this and next month loading. It could probably be had for a trifle less if short lay days were given. Loading will be scarce until next month, so that the freight market promises to rule dull for a time. Vessels arriving under charter are not crowding shippers. The Balaklava was taken up by [illegible] & Co. on terms reserved for the present. The San Francisco freight situation is rather weak. Vessels are arriving under [illegible] and [illegible] charters at the spot market of [illegible] and 3[illegible]. The spot market there is unfavorably influenced by low wheat prices abroad, a slow home wheat movement and accumulation of [illegible] tonnage. The last rates [illegible] market below the price at which they were taken as is always the case has been a principal cause for a weakness which [illegible] of disengaged ships cannot overcome. Three of the [illegible] charters [illegible] were rechartered after arrival at a loss of [illegible] and 1s 6d.

WHEAT—Arrivals for the week were 50 tons valley and 200 tons Walla Walla, against 51 and 80 tons the same week last year. Business has hardly kept pace with arrivals, the most of which were old wheat. Here no sales are reported and quotations are about $1 0[illegible] for Walla Walla and $1 1[illegible] for valley. Of the first grade buyers have taken some in the interior at about $1 07½. Here but shippers are waiting results of harvest. Some of the samples are of shrunken wheat. If the quality is generally as good as last year prices will be the same as compared with valley. For the valley grade we are reported bids of $1 1[illegible]. The quality is believed to be generally good.

MILLSTUFFS—Supply only fair with no middlings in store. The request is nothing out of ordinary. Quote jobbing values: bran $14@15; chop $22@24; shorts $15@16. Ground barley sells out at $26 and oil meal $32 50.

POTATOES—New Oregon or California quoted at $1 10@1 25. Trade is wholly of a local character. Sweets 4@5c.

ONIONS—Selling at $1 10@1 25 and steady supplies not being large.

FRUITS, ETC.—Few oranges obtainable at $3 50; lemons scarce and firm at $11; peaches $1 25@1 50; California apples $1; tomatoes, 80c@$1; plums 6@7c; grapes $1 50@1 60; melons $3 and cantaloupes $1 60 per dozen; new Oregon apples 60c. Imports by steamer of to-night may change the prices slightly.

BUTTER—Choice solid sells readily at 12½@15c; best roll steady at 16@17½c. Poorer grade find dull sale at 8@12½c. Dairy grades irregular, choice selling above these figures.

POULTRY—Chickens in only fair supply, the market ruling steady to firm at $3@4 50. Other poultry dull and nominal.

EGGS—Rather weaker at the close, being quoted 17@18c. Stocks fair but receipts not heavy. The weakness is largely brought about by the quantity of old shipped in.

HAY—Quote best loose $8@10 and old baled $7 50@[illegible]. Supplies ample.

Democrats and the Postoffices.

Springfield (Mass.) Republican, Mu[illegible].

In short one fourth of the postoffices have gone into the hands of the democrats in the course of nature and one-fourth by partisan change, and to try counting their acquisitions for the sixteen months they are undoubtedly in possession of more than half of the postoffices of the country. And Judge Abbott and a large part of the democratic party are in the sulks because they have not taken the whole. The process of political change is already gone further and faster in the postoffice department than can be justified on ground of evening up, and the president and the postmaster general should reserve the remainder still in the hands of their opponents for a more discriminating use of the power of removal as an agency of discipline and improvement of the service.

A Democratic Prince.

Letter to the Boston Herald.

It is an open secret in London that the queen [illegible] is strongly against the Prince of Wales's attendance at such houses as Mrs. Mackay's. The prince maintains however his partiality for the society of the witty and pretty daughters of Columbia even though they are "not well born."

What is the Use

Of dragging yourself around day after day with that all-gone feeling, all tired out and miserable, when you might be as quick and lively as ever?
